

TIGNANELLO 2021 PRICING ANALYSIS

Amidst a stable Tuscan market, and on the back of the recent 2021 releases from Sassicaia and Ornellaia, the new release from Tignanello could offer value to buyers – despite the price coming in above many of the other vintages available on the market.

Critics' scores

At the time of writing, Antonio Galloni (Vinous) is the only critic to have scored the wine. He awarded it 98 points, making it his joint highest scored vintage and said it is 'every bit as impressive from bottle as it was from barrel'. He further adds 'the 2021 has all the pedigree to become a modern benchmark for Tignanello and Italian wine more broadly'.

Fair Value analysis

Today's release is coming to the market below the equally high-scoring 2015 and 2016 vintages.

The 2018 may also present an attractive options to buyers. Although Galloni awarded the wine a lower score, it is available at an 8.5% discount to yesterday's release.

As shown below, the 2016 has also seen a 92% price increase over the last five years. The 2014 and 2013 have also seen good returns over the last five years increasing by 94.4% and 97.2% respectively.
